Suggest Reduction of Relief Grants

Main Street and Sixth Avenue to be Put in Shape By Government Machine; Council Refuses Responsibility for Number of Hospital Accounts; Discount Tax Period To be Extended

A meeting of the Council of the Town of Wainwright was held on Tuesday, September 6th, when there were present Mayor Middlemass and Councillors Cork, Robinson, Billing, Welch, Lismore and Link.

The recorded proceedings of council at its regular meeting of August 22nd were read and, on motion by Councillor Cork were adopted and confirmed as written.

Two communications were received from the Bureau of Relief and Public Welfare, relative to Mr. W. H. McNamara, one signed by Commissioner Macdonald and the other signed by Mr. A. H. Miller for the Commissioner and on motion by Councillor Lismore, the communications were received, acknowledged and filed.

A circular was received from the Bureau of Relief and Public Welfare, relative to reduction in grants to the municipalities for relief purposes and pointing out that conditions warrant a considerable reduction in the granting of relief, and on motion by Councillor Welch, this circular was ordered filed.

Mr. L. J. Kiloran, Secretary-Treasurer of the Wainwright Roman Catholic Separate School District, wrote requesting a payment of $600.00 on account of the regulation of his district for the current year, and on motion by Councillor Cork, payment of this amount was granted by Council.

On motion by Councillor Link, the Secretary was instructed to write the Secretary-Treasurer of the Wainwright Municipal Hospital District, requesting that, as a matter of fact, a hearing be held in the immediate future in connection with the suspension of Dr. Maynes from the hospital, giving both sides a fair opportunity to state their cases.

Romantic Adventure Historical Picture

The screen trend, so it seems, is toward a not new, but nevertheless contemporarily different kind of romance. Distinctly it is not toward the romance of affectionate physical or spiritual love interest; it is rather towards the romance of adventure.

One of the best scenes in "The Prince and the Pauper" which is being shown at the Elite this week end is the reproduction of a sixteenth century English coronation service. As the ancient rituals and paraphernalia are reproduced in authentic detail, the atmosphere of the sequence takes on a topical significance which gives the whole show an interest for adults that otherwise might be lacking in a film which essentially is a young folk's picture.

The staff is the same as last year, viz., Mr. M. Meade, Miss M. Durrant and Mr. R. Paton. A complete list of the courses being offered follows:

Mr. Meade: History 4, Algebra 3, Chemistry 2, French 3, Chemistry 1, English 2, Social Studies 2, Geography 1, Algebra 1, French 1, Social Studies 1 and English 1.

Miss Durrant: Composition 4, Literature 4, Latin 3, Social Studies 3, Dramatics 1, English 1, Art 1, Art IX, Dramatics IX and P.T. and Health (girls).

Mr. Paton: Trigonometry 1, Biology 1 (XII), Physics 3, General Mathematics 1, Geometry 1, Physics 1, Bookkeeping I, General Mathematics IX, General Science IX, Junior Business IX and P.T. and Health (boys).

Gov't Crop Report Ending Sept 7th

The concluding report by the Alberta department of agriculture, says that all crop districts report that cutting and threshing is in full progress with least harvesting being done in the Edmonton area, where crops are later this season than the average for the province.

For Division No. 10, which includes Wainwright, rainfall is reported at .89 inches since August 20th, with the total for August being 4.66 inches. Wheat cutting is practically completed, with 20.5% threshed. Summerfallow yields 10 bushels, spring plowing 12 bushels per acre. Predominant grade 3 Northern. Coarse grains 80 per cent cut but few are threshed. Yield in 32 bushels rate per acre. Pasture good for September. Hay good. Some rust is reported but doubt if it has reduced yields. Livestock conditions are fairly good but few cattle being offered for sale. Excellent threshing weather.

Large Gathering for Auspicious Birthday

Mrs. R. L. Saunders, one of the old time residents of Okotoks, celebrated her 88th birthday at her home on Sunday, with more than a score of relatives present representing three generations. Mrs. Saunders has three daughters and five sons, 19 grandchildren and 7 great grandchildren. Her three daughters, Mrs. R. W. Dawson and Mrs. T. C. Peacock, of Okotoks and Mrs. C. W. McBride, of Wainwright, were present, also three sons, Charlie and Roy of Calgary, and Bert of Kathrine, with their wives, three grandsons and three granddaughters. The eldest son, John, of Vancouver, was unable to attend. Another son, W.W., with his wife and two of their friends, Mr. and Mrs. Lannan, had motored 160 miles to see his mother.

Mrs. Saunders enjoys perfect health and meets each day philosophically with a smile. She took keen interest in the affair arranged for her and participated actively therein. Mrs. McBride has now returned home from this very auspicious gathering.

WEDDING BELLS

BARNARD-BECKETT

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of the bride's parents on Sunday last, at 1:30 p.m. when Maude Kathleen, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Beckett, of Wainwright, became the bride of Howard Leonard, second son of Mrs. H. Barnard, of Rosetown, Sask. Rev. T. E. Armstrong performed the ceremony.

The bride, who was given away by her father, looked lovely in a floor-length gown of white crepe with white shoes. Mrs. Percy Murray, sister of the bride, was groomed in wine satin and Mrs. Beckett, mother of the bride, in navy and white crepe. Mr. Percy Murray supported the groom.

After the wedding dinner the happy couple left by car for a short honeymoon in Edmonton. For travelling, the bride chose a navy sheer dress, blue shoes and hat, with brown coat. After their return they will reside in Wainwright.

Local Leader's P.T. Course Report

According to a recent statement by Ian Eisenhardt, supervisor of provincial recreation centres of British Columbia, "You cannot have a healthy mind without a healthy body, but neither can you have a really healthy body without a healthy mind."

Dedicated to the slogan, "Healthy and Happy" this fall and winter, under the general supervision of Mr. J. H. Ross, of Calgary, and in conjunction with the Dominion-Provincial Youth Training Program, Alberta will this year follow in the footsteps of B.C. and launch a program of recreation.

Back from an intensive course of three weeks, Mr. Hedy Abbott, the local leader, reports a splendid course interesting and enjoyable to a degree, but with a most beneficial one.

The local centre will this fall and winter embrace a course in fundamental gymnastics, passive exercises, bench exercises, stall-bar exercises (if bars are available) tumbling, springboard tumbling, box vaulting, folk dancing and games.

Gymnastic exercises, during the last 20 years in particular, have been subject to many changes from the old military style. Formerly gymnastics consisted of positions which were maintained and corrected until a new one was taken. These static positions had their value but were not functionally beneficial. After all, the main object for one to strive for in gymnastics is not static positions but graceful movements. Fundamental gymnastics are a continuous activity without rigidity or tension. They develop every part of the body. This modern method, based on the latest knowledge of physiology and psychology, develops strength which is evident in economy not expense, in balance rather than strain, not in violence but in versatility. During the course it was impressed upon the leaders that fundamental gymnastics are not for the young person only but for men and women of all ages and positions, and that it is hoped the whole community will benefit and take part in this valuable work.

Fundamental gymnastics are the basis of the course but out of this spring passive exercises, i.e. exercises used in couples for the purpose of stretching overstrained ligaments, tendons and muscle groups; bench exercises, etc. These courses build up strength, flexibility, agility and coordination for tumbling, etc.

It is hoped that Wainwright will get behind this move and that everyone will get out and enjoy themselves. In the near future a general meeting will be held for the purpose of further acquainting the public with the move. The Town Council have already expressed their sympathy and offered their co-operation in the matter of accommodation and apparatus, subject to the interest of the youth and adults of Wainwright. It is hoped that the various clubs, lodges and organizations of Wainwright will give the matter thought in their coming meeting and will be represented at the public meeting to be held on an announced date.

As a tentative suggestion, subject to local desire, classes will be held twice a week. There will be definitely no mixed classes, excepting open nights, or nights reserved for folk dancing if same are desired.

Ladies who are interested should be in attendance on the night of the public meeting, and ladies' clubs which feel the matter deserving of notice might send representation. The formation of a ladies' class will depend upon the desire expressed for one. It might be noted that in B.C. ladies' classes outnumber men's two to one.

Let us see all Wainwright behind this move of recreation and youth rehabilitation. This is a Dominion-Provincial wide movement—let not Wainwright be behind.

The local leader, if desired, be happy to address any organization or club to acquaint them with the project.

L.O.B.A. G. Mistress Pays Official Visit

Last Friday marked a red-letter day in the annals of the local lodge of the L.O.B.A., the occasion being the official visit of the right worshipful grand mistress of the Order in the person of Mrs. James Dawson, of Edmonton.

During the evening's business the ceremony of initiation was conferred upon a new candidate, and later the honored guest gave her report from the Dominion Grand Lodge, as well as an instructive and impressive address on the obligation and tenets of the organization.

At the close of the lodge, a delicious lunch was served, at which time on behalf of the lodge, Mrs. Graham presented Mrs. Dawson with a beautiful gift to commemorate her visit here.

On Saturday a number of the members of the local lodge accompanied their distinguished guest to Edmonton, where that lady also paid her official visit to Loughlugh lodge of the Order, and a pleasant time was enjoyed.

Freight Charges Passed to Consumer

Development of Turner Valley as an oil field has been a big factor in saving this year $5½ million dollars for western farmers in the prices of their gasoline and tractor fuels.

Prices are lower because refiners have been able to use the supply of crude oil near hand. Savings have been made in freight charges and these have been passed on to the consumer.

In point of fact, the actual saving is substantially more, if one could accurately compute it. The $5½ millions is computed on the basis of 1937 consumption of petroleum products, a year in which there was a poor crop. This year prairie farmers are in a better position with better crops, cost of their equipment and supplies for operation is lower.

Obviously also, the consumption of gasoline and distillates will be greater than last year when the crop failed. Thus a calculation on the basis of the 1937 crop necessarily falls short in showing the actual savings in 1938.

Miss Donna Fraser entertained a few friends at her home Monday evening in honor of Mr. Eldon Rudd, who is leaving town shortly.

The Family DOCTOR

By JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

MORE EVIDENCE

A very old adage has it, "Fools make feasts; wise men eat them." But we are living in a different age; I don't call anybody a fool because he spreads a feast—he can afford it; the very much bigger fool is the fellow that gorges himself at the feast!

Last evening, much against my better judgment, I accepted an invitation to dine at 6 o'clock with a professional brother—our wives were in attendance. The cars of the day were past and gone; it was time for recreation that is so essential to the brain worker. Everyone in the happy group, except myself, adored the six o'clock dinner, and indulged in it at every opportunity.

To say that this was a fine, sumptuous meal, does not half describe the setting. It was a triumph of culinary skill—the quantity was limited to capacity only.

Incidentally, one of the physicians present said he was a little ticklish about coffee—he had a blood-pressure of something over 200, and was a bit apprehensive about it; he was only sixty, and looked forty-five. Yet, he was being seriously threatened.

My wife and I went to the party in a neighbor physician's car. As we came home at 10:30 P. M., the doctor said to me, "I've had to be a little guarded here lately; Mrs. C— and I are both developing high blood-pressures."

Just one thing, dear reader: THE SIX O'CLOCK DINNER. Protein poisoning, from the absorption of excessive amounts of undigested food. A heavy meal, partaken of when the mind and body were tired and needed rest. REST. Stomachs compelled to work when relaxed and weakened from mental and physical fatigue.

Why Milk is Safe For Babies

(Guy G. Stevens in The Forum)

Milk used to be cheaper. It has not always been subject to the careful inspection it gets now.

"When I was married," Aunt Martha frequently reminds me, "I could drop four cents in my agate pail and set it right there side of my front steps. Fred Green would come driving along and dip me out a quart, good measure."

"Did Fred wash his hands when he dropped the reins to fish out the pennies and dip you the milk?" I asked.

"No, of course not. He was a real clean man, though." She gave me a plying smile. "It's folks like you, with all this inspection stuff, that boost the price of milk until it's a wonder that folks can live at all. It's all so much faddish."

"What was your oldest boy's name?"

"Harry—the one who died when he was eight months old?"

"Yes. What was the trouble?"

"Well, old Doc and us, we laid it onto that spell of weather. It was so hot that everybody was tickered out. A sight of folks died, most of them children. Harry was took with cholera infantum, and our little girl, she was six, got scrofula, all the same summer."

"You never laid any of that trouble to the milk, did you?"

"Not to Fred Green's milk."

"Have you noticed that kids don't die of cholera infantum any more?"

Aunt Martha tightened her lips. "We don't have the hot summers we used to have," she stated.

Aunt Martha pays 12 cents a quart for her bottled milk, these days. The extra is what her safe-milk insurance costs her.

As a boy, I lived on a farm a mile down from the village where I am now a veterinarian. My chore was to milk the cows, and later I was employed by the local milk station. In those good old days milk was anything that would pass through a cheesecloth strainer.

Barns had rotten wood floors. Piles of manure leached against their sides. Windows were coated with the dust of years. Horses, chickens and cows shared the same apartment. Barnyards were an unspeakable slough in the spring. Wells and privies were often in dangerous proximity. Aside from watering troughs and open wells there were few milk-cooling systems.

The milk station, or creamery, was a drab wooden building, and the wood floors made good nesting places for barnyard dirt and germs brought in on the farmers' boots. A lost-and-found department might well have been established there. When we looked in the cans we learned what became of Nancy's tin cup and why Trixie's kitten ceased to appear for morning rations. Creamery employees ceased to be surprised at anything. One fellow, lifting the cover of a milk can, was greeted by the raised head of a live water snake. I personally can furnish an affidavit that the snake was over two feet long and very much alive. (This particular can had been lowered into an open well the preceding night.) Inspection meant nothing in those days.

Cow stables are now removed from horses and pigs and hens. All wooden floors of stables have been changed to concrete. All manure piles are removed from adjacent yards daily. Every cow barn is whitewashed annually.

Each farm is equipped with an isolated milk house, properly screened. Cooling systems are concrete vats with tight-fitting covers. This eliminates Nancy's tin cup and Trixie's kitten. Milk warmer than 60 degrees in summer, and frozen milk in winter, are both rejected at the creamery. Refrigerated tank cars carry the milk to the cities, where it is pasteurized and bottled.

The cows are brushed, and their udders rinsed off before milking. Some farmers fasten the long, switching tails by a clothespin to a wire strung from the ceiling. Any family with an infectious disease cannot sell milk as long as the quarantine is in effect.

In short, everything humanly possible is done to make milk safe for babies; and when all things are taken into consideration, I, for one, think safe modern milk is worth the difference in price.

There are many who would say that the milk is worth the difference in price. The cows are brushed, and their udders rinsed off before milking. Some farmers fasten the long, switching tails by a clothespin to a wire strung from the ceiling. Any family with an infectious disease cannot sell milk as long as the quarantine is in effect.

In short, everything humanly possible is done to make milk safe for babies; and when all things are taken into consideration, I, for one, think safe modern milk is worth the difference in price.

There were farmers scrupulously neat about their barns, whose barnyards were filled with enough gravel to keep them from becoming a mire, who used driven wells and would not tolerate sickly cows. But these men, in a pitiful minority. After all, what did it matter? All the milk went into one vat and retailed for six cents a quart.

Veterinarians had been hired to do a desultory sort of physical inspection. If a cow was emaciated, she had tuberculosis, and the owner was advised to get rid of her. If she gave stringy milk, or was a "two-teater," again the owner was asked to dispose of her. But, due to lack of authority to enforce disposal, many an imperfect cow passed from one neighbor to another, becoming every year more decrepit, until she passed over the Great Divide, to hamburger sadwiches.

Then epidemics, which had been attributed to anything from a manifestation of God's displeasure to bad luck, began to be traced to contaminated milk. Septic sore throat, scarlet fever, diphtheria, and typhoid fever were held squarely to this cause. Veterinarians received authority to be more insistent upon the disposal of suspicious animals. Doctors recognized that milk was an ideal medium for the growth of bacteria, and inspectors were given increasing powers. Many of the dairymen, at first, were about as cordial to the inspectors as a grizzly defending her cub, and some of the inspectors over-stopped their authority. But the total results justified the methods. Ask any mother today if her children have had cholera infantum or scrofula, and she will look at you in blank amazement. Tuberculosis traceable to diseased cows now travel to complete oblivion.

The creamery of my youth has been sold out to a big milk corporation, and is now a substantial building with receiving platform and floors of concrete. The interior is scrupulously cleaned every day, and the windows are properly screened. No dairymen are allowed to enter—communications are posted on a bulletin outside the door. The workers have clean uniforms every day. Nobody knows when the creamery may be visited by any one of several inspectors.

When the milk cans are being steamed the noise is indescribable. Steam hisses and sputters. Cans clank and men shout.

It was Saturday. "Hurry up there! Don't be so damned fussy. I've got five bucks on the ball game."

"Say, Bo, that can didn't go through."

"Aw, what's one can? Let her ride!"

An inspector happened to be standing on the bridge above, observing them. He telegraphed New York, and there was no milk accepted from that station for two days.

The local milkman was the last to receive attention. For years it continued to be a man's own business if he wanted to sell milk to his neighbors, but now the distribution in even the small towns is closely supervised by the state health authorities. Every distributor must have a license, and of course every herd is tuberculin tested.

Cow stables are now removed from horses and pigs and hens. All wooden floors of stables have been changed to concrete. All manure piles are removed from adjacent yards daily. Every cow barn is whitewashed annually.

Each farm is equipped with an isolated milk house, properly screened. Cooling systems are concrete vats with tight-fitting covers. This eliminates Nancy's tin cup and Trixie's kitten. THE FARMER'S "IF"

(With apologies to Rudyard Kipling)

If you can do the job of any toiler,
Carpenter, mason, plumber, engineer,
If you can drill a well and mend a boiler
And practice fifty other trades a year,

If you can run machines and doctor cattle,
Keep setting hens on duty at their nests;
If you can fight an unremitting battle
With endless armies of invading pests;

If you can face the hazards of the weather,
Gambling with Nature with your stake,
And when the luck's against you altogether,
Fight on, and never let your courage break;

If you can hold your patience when coping
With drought or flood, with blight and smut and scale,
And lose, and start again and keep on hoping
In spite of all the harvests that may fall;

If you can share the burdens of your neighbors
Gladly, but leave their own affairs, their own;
If, notwithstanding all your endless labors,
Your spirit keeps its warmly human tone;

If you can see your every task as thrilling
Because, though sometimes wearily you plod,
You know each stubborn acre you are tilling
Is new wealth you've created from the sod;

If you can feel a joy at turning over
The good brown earth in furrows cleanly run;
If you love scent of oats and wheat and clover
And yellow corn that ripens in the sun;

If you don't rob the soil, yet go on getting
From every acre all that it is worth;
You are a FARMER, son—and I am setting
You wouldn't trade with anyone on earth!

—Exchange.

THE PRICE

I climbed the ladder of success,
Then let myself look back,
And, lo—I saw the joys I passed
Unnoticed on the track—

A hand that I had failed to grasp;
A heart I'd failed to touch;
A joy to some child brushed aside,
That would have meant so much.

A kindly deed I overlooked;
A smile I failed to give—
So greedily I sought success,
I hadn't stopped to live.

I saw myself a master man,
Unmerciful—and cold—
And in a world of happiness
I stood alone—and old.

One good head is better than a thousand strong hands.

COMMERCIALIZING THE CHURCH

In a recent editorial, the Collingwood (Ont.) Enterprise-Bulletin gave some attention to the fitness of advertising from church pulpits.

Under the caption of "Commercializing the Church," this enterprising newspaper brought forth numerous points that are worthy of real consideration. It says:

"The reverend gentleman is undoubtedly right. To get away from the present procedure he would use the press or printed bulletins, if the various organizations were prepared to give five or ten dollars a year for the purpose. Such would eliminate distraction from the service and leave the hour, it is feared often so begrudgingly given, free for worship."

"In pulpits advertising a need of the church today? In some quarters it is held that there is too much commercialization of the House of God. But on Sunday last a minister of Owen Sound proclaimed against this very thing. He was strong in his denunciation of the modern trend. In part he said: 'We are no commercialized that every Sunday the clergy have to carry a sheaf of announcements mostly about secular things, and unless much is made of each one somebody is going to get into trouble.'"

And that was not all. He continued: "What would you think of the Acts of the Apostles if there could be found a few verses like this? And it came to pass that St. Peter before his wonderful sermon on the day of Pentecost announced: There will be a rummage sale on the market square of Jerusalem on the 2nd day of the week. On the third day of the week there will be a whist drive in the Hall of Moses. On the 4th day of the week there will be a baking sale in Joseph's departmental store. On the 5th day of the week there'll be a garden party on the Mount of Olives with all sorts of raffles to make money for the preaching of the Gospel in foreign lands. I venture to say if anything like that appeared we never would have heard of the Acts of the Apostles. Why then should our worship to Almighty God be so interrupted today?"

"The reverend gentleman is undoubtedly right. To get away from the present procedure he would use the press or printed bulletins, if the various organizations were prepared to give five or ten dollars a year for the purpose. Such would eliminate distraction from the service and leave the hour, it is feared often so begrudgingly given, free for worship."

MODERN WOMEN
CHARL ORMOND WILLIAMS
President of National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc.

Some day our women astronomers will cease to hide their brilliance from the world and we will begin to know more about them. Now and then a little information does find its way into print, and this is how I have learned that for fifty years women have been studying astronomy, collaborating, teaching and observing at the Harvard Observatory. Dr. Annie Jump Cannon, now past 70, is considered one of the world's foremost in this science. Another woman of wide reputation is Dr. Cecilia Payne-Gaposhkin of the Harvard Observatory, recently made a member of the American Philosophical Society which was founded by Benjamin Franklin. Dr. Carol Anger Rieke has made important discoveries in the heavens. Other noted astronomers are Miss Antonia Maury, Miss Henriette Leavitt and Miss Margaret Harwood who maintains the observatory at Vantucket.

An outstanding authority in the field of medicine is Dr. Alice Hamilton, recently appointed medical consultant for the Department of Labor, Washington, D. C. She has retired from the Harvard School of Public Health, where she became assistant professor of industrial medicine. She has had unusual training and experience in her profession. After being graduated from the University of Michigan she studied in Germany and Paris and again in this country. She has taught medicine, done research work, directed the Illinois Occupational Disease Commission and was special investigator of poisonous trades for the Federal Department of Labor. Her career shows how far women can advance in this profession when they have training and opportunities.

For twenty-nine years Mrs. Kathryn Dicks has been railroad station agent at Buckland, Ohio, and in all that time she never lost a day through illness and never took a vacation. Her job is to sell tickets, handle express and freight baggage, check cars in the yard, throw switches, watch the crossing and serve as telegrapher.

ANIMAL VITAMIN D FOR FEED MIXTURES

Vitamins, those mysterious accessory food factors, are organic substances of unknown constitution, yet essential in the diet of man, bird or beast. For when vitamin D is isolated was designated "A." It is the growth vitamin and seems to fortify the body against infection from bacterial diseases. Its presence in the mucus membranes of the nose is therefore significant. "A" is known as the antiscorbutic vitamin because it prevents scurvy and probably dental defects also. "E" has been named the reproductive or anti-sterility vitamin, and one of the richest sources of "E" is the oil of the wheat germ embryo.

Vitamin D, says B. Leslie Ennis, well-known chemist-agronomist, is the most important of all the vitamins and its functions better understood. It has been the subject of much research and scientific treatment in many countries. "D" is known as the antirachitic vitamin because it promotes the assimilation of calcium and phosphorus by the blood serum, the two elements essential primarily for bone formation and for other body functions. The presence of an adequate supply of Vitamin D prevents rickets and other bone malformations, leg weakness in pigs, chicks, etc., increases milk and egg production and the hatchability of eggs.

Vitamins occupy so important a place in nutrition that no food manufacturer can ignore them. The importance of Vitamin D for pregnant and nursing dams is well known as is the need for addition of vitamin D to winter feed. Summer milk is two and one-half times richer than winter milk in Vitamin D.

"Sunshine Vitamin" is another name for "D" since its activity is promoted through the irradiation of the skin by the ultra violet rays of the sun. These act on the sterol, a naturally occurring source of Vitamin D in all bodies.

Codliver oil is a well known source of Vitamin D and has been used as such for the past 200 years, though it is only within the past 30 years that its virtues are recognized as due to the vitamin. Unfortunately in codliver oil, often adulterated with other fish oils, the Vitamin D content is very unstable and sometimes lacking. It was found, and confirmed by feed elsewhere, that the feeding of codliver oil to cows reduced the butterfat content in the milk, whereas the substitution of an irradiated Pro-Vitamin D had the opposite effect.

An Activated Animal Pro-Vitamin has proven in practice to be at least 50 per cent more effective than any other source of Vitamin D. For convenience the material is put up in packages of one pound each sufficient for a cow.

The World of Wheat

H. G. L. Stranges,
Director, Research Department,
Searle Grain Company, Ltd.

Alberta farmers in certain large areas need heavy new varieties of wheat that will be as early as Canada and that will possess the high qualities of Marquis.

The University of Alberta, the Dominion Experimental Farms at Lacombe, Lethbridge and Beaverbridge, and the Provincial School of Agriculture at Olds and Vermilion are working steadily on this problem, but they now need the farmers' help, for the much desired new variety will be produced quicker if the plant breeders in these institutions can find out what farmers think of the varieties they are now using.

The University of Alberta recently published bulletin number 30, which deals with cereal crops. I recommend every farmer to write for a free copy of this excellent bulletin and then fill in and to mail the questionnaire on wheat that will be found therein.

Those who have received the bulletin, but who have not yet filled in the questionnaire, should, I courteously suggest, do so, for the information that farmers can supply, is an assured by Dr. Neaby, of the University of Alberta, will most definitely help our plant breeders to produce the high quality earlier variety of wheat now so badly needed.

Following factors have tended to raise price: Russia withdraws wheat offers—European political news still unfavorable—Germany makes substantial purchases of Argentine corn, Canadian and Rumanian wheat—Italian wheat import requirements believed large and corn moderate—United Kingdom taking good quantities of Australian wheat—Adverse weather delays Russian harvest.

Following factors have tended to lower price: New Argentine wheat offerings below present prices—Switzerland increases wheat import duty—Australian wheat crop improves—High Balkan minimum wheat prices restricts sale to countries with available currencies—Argentine wheat reserves may be larger than believed—Rumanian wheat crop probably 24 million above 1937.

ent for mixing with one ton of feed. To the mixer the usual amount of bran may be placed and the powder added, these two constituents being given a 3-minute pre-mix before introducing the other ingredients and continuing the usual process.

Besides being cheaper and of standardized higher potency Vitamin D in the milk powder medium has several important advantages over codliver oil. The milk powder protects the vitamin from oxidation and is more uniformly and thoroughly dispersed in the feed mixture. In cold weather, and especially in cold grain, codliver oil congeals rapidly, with the result that it is unevenly distributed, perhaps only from 25 to 50 per cent of the feed being coated.

CONTROLLING SOIL DRIFT IN PARK BELT SOILS

The sandy loam soils of the park belt are very subject to damage by erosion resulting from continued high winds and dry weather, states G. E. DeLong, Dominion Experimental Station, Lacombe, Alberta. In many cases the damage done during one windstorm is relatively small, but the cumulative effect of a number of storms over a period of years is doing serious damage to some of the finest agricultural land in the province.

The most serious damage is done during the spring months to unprotected land such as bare summer-fallow or fall-ploughed stubble. In extreme cases, the full furrow slice has been removed during a three-day blow, leaving potato sets uncovered that were planted in the bottom of a furrow. In other extreme cases the spring grown grain is blown out after it is three to four inches high and catches along highways are heaped up with the finest silty loam from adjacent fields.

Experiments conducted at the Dominion Experimental Station, Lacombe, have shown that the use of trash cover and a late-seeded crop will provide sufficient protection to prevent soil-drifting on summer-fallow land.

The trash cover is provided by a system of ploughless tillage that leaves the stubble on the surface. The method followed at Lacombe is to disk the stubble early in the spring to promote the germination of weed seeds which are destroyed in the seedling stage by subsequent tillage with the stiff-tusk or duckfoot cultivator. If the cultivator is given with the duckfoot cultivator while wild oats and other weeds are small seedlings, no other implement is required to control the weeds, and the trash cover will not be destroyed as in the case where a one-way disk is used too frequently. Reports indicate that working the land more than once with the one-way disk destroys the stubble trash cover.

The use of a cover crop of one-half bushel of vetch seed per acre, August first and fifteenth provides additional protection against soil drifting. If the cover crop is seeded too early, it makes more growth than is necessary to provide sufficient protection, and as a result utilizes moisture and plant food which could be used to advantage by the crop of grain planted the following spring.

Winter annual weeds, such as stinkweed and shepherd's purse, are a problem in cover crops. It has been found, however, that stroking with the spring-tooth harrow in the spring just before seeding will destroy these fall-established plants and leave the surface lumpy and the trash cover undisturbed to a minimum degree, thus providing a maximum amount of protection against soil drifting.

It has been observed that a summer-fallow that has been ploughed and kept black throughout the season. The standard summer-fallow which has been ploughed and kept black may produce slightly higher yields than a ploughless fallow that has produced and been protected by a cover crop. On the other hand, it is absolutely necessary to adopt a system of farming that will prevent the loss of one or two inches of the rich surface soil each season or irreparable damage will be done to the finest agricultural soil in Alberta.

Tests conducted by poultry authorities in the East and Midwest point to sulphur as an effective method of controlling coccidiosis, the dread poultry disease. A series of experiments conducted in Maryland and Delaware it was found that 10 per cent of sulphur added to growing mash and fed one full day each week, was effective in controlling coccidiosis in flocks confined to houses. Other experiments point to the daily feed of two or three per cent sulphur in the mash, both prior to and during the time that the flock is especially subject to the disease.

New house dresses, smartly designed and made from lovely fabrics, are a striking contrast to those voluminous, colorful, apron-like things of yore. Fashion prints are the latest idea. They come in double-breasted dresses, smock varieties and straw hats in natural cotton crash with floral motifs that are exact copies of printed designs found in rare old Persian tapestries.

If you buy a nice thick juicy steak and then find you cannot use it for several days, you needn't worry about keeping it. Just brush over the steak on both sides with glycerine and put it in the utility tray of your refrigerator under the quick-freezing apparatus. When you are ready to cook it, the glycerine will wash off easily, and you will find the steak has not dried out or discolored as tastes as tender as if just bought.

The idea is really just a simplification of a process recently patented in Washington for preserving the natural color and purity of the cut surface of fresh meat. This process involves the use of a protective covering of the meat, in which the preservative properties of glycerine, among other ingredients, are utilized.

Bacteriology, University of Toronto, says in part:

"The purpose of this study was to determine (1) the incidence of bovine tuberculosis in children, (2) the role played by milk in the transmission of this disease, and (3) the effect of preventive measures, namely, the eradication of tuberculosis in cattle by tuberculin testing and slaughter of reacting animals, and the more widespread use of pasteurization of milk upon the incidence of this disease in children."

"Investigation is being carried out in the City of Toronto, where pasteurization of milk is compulsory and where it has been rigidly enforced since 1915, thus affording us an excellent opportunity for study of the efficacy of such a procedure in controlling milk-borne infections."

"At this time of writing, in a series of 500 tuberculin tests, children investigated over a period of 13 years, in 94 per cent of extra-pulmonary tuberculosis the infecting organism has proved to be of bovine type. Bovine tuberculosis bacilli have been recovered from bones, joints, glands, kidneys, meninges, serous surfaces, tonsils, adenoid tissue and skin. Thus with the exception of primary tuberculosis of the lung, no organ or tissue of the human body is immune to infection with the bovine type of the tubercle bacillus."

"The youngest patient in this group was an infant 6 1/2 months old, suffering from bilateral tuberculous adenitis and tonsillitis, the oldest a girl of 14 years of age, suffering from renal tuberculosis which necessitated the removal of one kidney."

"Without exception, the children harboring infection with the bovine type of the tubercle bacillus have come to Toronto for treatment from different parts of the Province of Ontario, other provinces and other countries, where the milk supply is not pasteurized. History invariably revealed the fact that the child had been fed raw milk for some time, or had always been fed it. Wherever possible we endeavored to obtain milk for examination and guinea-pig inoculation. Thus, in three instances in this series it was possible not only to demonstrate tubercle bacilli in the milk consumed by the child, but to actually trace the infection to the animal responsible for the transmission of the disease to the human host."

"SAFETY FIRST" WHEN HUNTING

With the hunting season about to commence in the various provinces of Canada, now, more than ever before, eternal vigilance is the price of safety, so far as the handling of firearms is concerned. The recurring reports of accidents, many of them fatal, due to careless or inexperienced persons handling guns, has led C. K. Howard, Manager, Fish and Game Department of the Canadian National Railways, to suggest to sportsmen the need of safety in this matter.

Safe carrying of guns must become a definite habit, said Mr. Howard in making his suggestions. The golden rule is that the muzzle of a carried gun must never sweep the horizon. If an accidental discharge takes place it should send the shot into the ground before the feet of the person carrying the gun, or into the air. The muzzle of a gun should never be allowed to point towards the person carrying it, nor towards any other persons.

Guns being taken into boats and vehicles, or over fences and other obstructions, should precede the person carrying them. Cartridges should be removed on entering camp or house. Loaded guns should never be aimed at anything unless the holder intends to pull the trigger. No loaded gun should be placed where it may be knocked down by a dog or child, nor can there be any excuse for a loaded gun standing where it may be handled by a person who does not know that it is loaded.

Perhaps the most frequent cause of shooting accidents is the dangerous habit of some hunters who shoot "at something moving in the bushes" without first making certain that the moving object is the game they seek rather than a hunting companion.

"Few accidents happen to people who are careful of their guns," Mr. Howard stated. "The precepts of safety are simple. If they are generally observed many lives can be saved during each hunting season. The hunter must never forget that the man who 'didn't know it was loaded' is always with us."

TOO OLD AT FORTY?

Twenty-one reasons why persons over forty years of age are unemployed or fail to gain promotions were recently listed by a joint legislative committee which investigated alleged discriminations by New York industries against elderly persons.

Among these was given "the general speed-up in industry" with which it was felt by industrialists, middle-aged men would be unable to cope. This is probably partially true but it does not seem logical to suppose that a middle-aged man with perhaps ten or twenty years experience at the task at which he is engaged, cannot cope with the skill and speed of a youth with but a few months of years experience.

In this day, middle-aged men have developed what almost amounts to a mania for keeping themselves in a good physical condition (and this is one of the more desirable effects of this fear of losing a job at forty has been responsible for) so there is no sound reason why a forty-year-old man who can play eighteen skillful holes of golf each day and by his ability to do so demonstrates that his eye is keen and his hand steady, cannot turn out work with as much skill and speed as younger men who in all too many cases make of their lives a continual round of wild pleasures.

Middle-aged men are undoubtedly staid in their habits by and large. They are through with "running around." They've had their fun and sown their wild oats and are more settled in disposition. Most of them have wives and if you have a wife worthy of the name, you have a stabilizer and a guide to the better things of life.

Another reason given was that middle-aged men were less efficient than young men. This too may be partially right but there is room for argument. True it is that modern youths are obtaining better training than did their fathers. But who is training them? None other than men of middle age or older, who have had the experience necessary to enable them to impart knowledge to the youngsters. We have had so many examples of successful men who owe their progress to the school of experience and hard knocks, that it does not seem compatible to suppose that such hard knocks occur to nothing as opposed to youth and strength and a thorough modern schooling.

One of the more sound arguments presented by the committee is the fact that middle-aged men have lost their skills due to frequent and protracted lay-offs. This is undoubtedly true, for it takes an older man a longer time to come back to regain his customary facility at any given task than it does a young man.

However, taken as a whole, youth cannot match experience in any task except those which require the soundness of mind and limb which youth is supposed to possess, but often does not.

THE GROWING CITY

By Arthur B. Rhinow

A stranger in New York was impressed with the unceasing building operations. Stately mansions were raised to make room for glass apartment houses; office buildings, far from venerable, were replaced by skyscrapers; not to speak of the streets that seemed to be ever open for new additions to the mysterious web of underground wires.

"This will be a fine town," the stranger observed, after it gets finished. Well, it will not be finished, but it is a fine town, nevertheless, in natural beauty and majestic enterprise. In spite of its dark shadows, the heart of the city reaches far higher than the tallest towers, and deeper than the ocean depths of the harbor that rocks the ships of all nations on its bosom.

Perhaps the very fact that it is never finished makes it so interesting. Anything that has come to a standstill is not attractive. We admire the ruins of ancient cities so much because they remind us, with the romance of retrospect, of a time when, on that spot a life centre flourished with teeming, throbbing, unfinished activity.

So long as we grow we live; when we cease to grow we begin to die. And what we really are, will never die. We may cast off the outworn suit of clothes, and outworn opinions and traditions, and some day we shall cast off this outworn body, but we shall live on, for we are not finished here. This life would be a lie if there were no hereafter. And because we are so unfinished here there is nothing more interesting than man.

SLOW DOWN

School opening has started a number of little beginners on a regular patrol between home and school. It is quite an adventure for many of them, and they cannot be depended upon to exercise all wise precautions at street crossings. Even children of greater experience are sometimes apt to forget the need of caution on the streets. The public is asked to bear this in mind, and to drive with special care in all school areas.

The main street in the vicinity of the public school is an additional

"Big Sister's" Problem

Ariene Francis, beautiful stage and radio actress, is heard as Lola Mitchell in the "Big Sister" sketches over the combined CBB-CBC-CJCA network Mondays through Fridays, 11:00 to 11:15 a.m. Lola is a temptress girl of the back streets, is one of the people "Big Sister" tries to help. Miss Francis is a graduate of the exclusive Finch Finishing School and started her acting career in a performance given by the Junior League Society.

menace to child safety. The traffic is heavy at any time, and grain trucks are adding to the menace at this period of the year. Truck and car drivers are urged to use more caution than they are in the habit of doing in the school neighborhood.

It is surprising to find that the chief offenders against speed regulations in town limits, are people of the town and district. As a rule tourists try to conform to speed regulations of the towns through which they pass and besides they are unfamiliar with turns and stops, and are as a rule well within the speed limit. It is the local resident who, through long familiarity with the streets, sweeps through the town regardless of public safety. People living in the vicinity of the public school are in continual apprehension of accidents to children—not from tourists, but from our own truck-driving, car-driving public. It pays to slow down.

"ONE BORN EVERY MINUTE"

The proverbial saying of P. T. Barnum will become a well-known fact in Wainwright and district within the next few weeks. With a good crop being harvested, our fair town will be the hub for activities of pedlars, and other sharks selling everything from toothpicks to tractors, who will take their profit one day and skip the country the next day, to spend the busy hours they have squeezed from the purses of Wainwright citizens and farmers.

Needless to say, every want of the people of Wainwright and district can be supplied here by our local merchants and dealers, and furthermore one knows exactly the price and quality of goods purchased in town. Because Wainwright is expecting a good crop this year is no reason why all the profits should be handed over to outside merchants. Every citizen helps to create a community in which boys and girls and yourself may enjoy certain privileges. Take even a portion of this business away and it retards progress. Buy at home.

The Letter Box

LARGER SCHOOL UNITS

The following reply from the Chief Inspector of Schools was recently published by the Wainwright Times in reply to a request that a vote be taken on the proposed larger school divisions:

"Dear Sir: I am directed to reply to your letter of the 19th instant addressed to the Minister of Education. I note that you are making a request for a vote to determine the ratepayers' attitude before action is taken to establish a larger unit in your area."

I wish to point out that the School Act does not make any provision for a vote on this question. Subsection (1) of section 231 of the School Act places on the shoulders of the Minister the responsibility for determining himself whether the conditions are such as to make advisable the establishment of a division in any area of the Province. When the Minister reaches a decision that a division should be established, it is his further responsibility to issue the necessary order for its establishment in accordance with the requirements of the School Act governing such procedure.

NOTICE

ALL PATIENTS who are indebted to us in any amount are hereby informed that all outstanding accounts as at September 30th, 1938, will be handed out for collection, and our collector is hereby authorized to make settlements in our behalf for same.

This is the only intimation we will give before other action is taken by the collector.

G. MAYNES, M.D.

PUBLIC NOTICE

NOTICE TO RELATIVES OF PERSONS ON THE ASSESSMENT ROLL AND TENANTS AND RELATIVES OF TENANTS WHO ARE ON THE LIST

NOTICE is hereby given that, during the month of September and October, 1938, applications may be made under the provisions of Section 148 and the amendments thereto of the Town and Village Act, for inclusion in the 1938 voters' list of the Town of Wainwright by the following persons, namely:

- All tenants who have rented an assessed parcel for a period of twelve months immediately preceding the last day of August of this year and who make application to be entered in the said voters' list during the months of September and October, 1938.
- The wife, husband, father and mother and each son and daughter of each person,
- Whose name appears on the assessment roll, and
- Whose name has been added to the voters' list as a tenant in accordance with paragraph (a) above, who are entitled to be placed upon the said list—

(I) if such wife, husband, father, mother, son or daughter resides with him within the town and

(II) if he or she is of the full age of twenty-one years and

(III) if his or her name does not already appear on the assessment roll and

(IV) if he or she duly makes application to be entered therein during the months of September and October, 1938.

DATED at Wainwright, Alberta, this 20th day of August, A.D. 1938.

N. S. KENNY,
Secretary-Treasurer.

Since the legislation covering the formation of school divisions does not provide for a vote of the electors before establishment it was evidently considered unnecessary or inadvisable by the elected representatives of the people to put this particular question to a further vote.

Your obedient servant,
E. L. FULLER,
Chief Inspector of Schools.

AMONG THE OLD-TIMERS

"REMINERS OF OTHER DAYS"

TEN YEARS AGO

Miss Marion Baker was on the sick list during the past week.

Under the auspices of the local Women's Institute, a very successful raffish course was conducted, with Mrs. Woods, of Stony Plain, as demonstrator. The sessions were held at the home of Mrs. Lassell.

Miss Irene Morton left on Sunday to spend an extended visit with relatives in Seattle.

Mrs. Bernard Craig, of Passchendaele, was brought to the hospital on Friday, suffering from a stroke.

Extensive alterations have been made to the home of Mr. Dave Credille on Main Street. A new foundation was laid under the entire building as well as an addition added to the back.

Mrs. Kinghorn, of Woodville, Ont., who has been visiting her mother and sister, Mrs. Greenaway and Mrs. S. Baker, left for her home this week.

Mr. Alex Swanson made a trip to Wetaskiwin with his big truck last week and returned with the effects of Mr. R. Goodrich, who plans to conduct a chicken ranch here.

Miss Rene Smith returned to take charge of Ascot school for another year.

Having purchased the two lots adjoining their property on Second avenue, the Atlas Lumber company started work this week on a new large dry shed. This structure, which will be 36x120 feet, will allow them to carry practically all their stock under cover.

Mrs. Stinert, act., returned from a visit spent with her daughter in St. Paul, Alta.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

One of the infant twin sons of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gano passed away on Sunday.

Work is progressing rapidly on the new residence for Mr. F. W. Aykroyd on Third avenue.

Mr. E. N. Kirman, former G.T.P. telegraph operator here, left at the week-end for Calgary where he accepted a similar position.

Tenders have been called for the erection of a new telephone exchange. It will be erected on Third avenue near the Imperial Lumber buildings and will be of brick with four rooms, office, etc.

Messrs. H. C. Munn, A. E. Mills, W. E. Washburn, W. S. Clark and S. R. Bowerman left on Tuesday for north.

WHITE CLOUD

Miss Helen Potter, of Three Hills, Alberta, has been engaged as teacher of the White Cloud School for the coming term, arriving at the week end. School re-opened on Tuesday.

Mr. Alec Vegso is the first to commence threshing operations in this district. The Tendu outfit moved to his farm on Friday morning.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Plaxton on the birth of a fine baby daughter, born on Saturday, August 27, at the Wainwright Municipal Hospital.

Miss Madeline Blason is working at the home of Marvin Plaxton at present.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Myers, of Ponoka, have been recent visitors in the district.

Mrs. D. Sutherland has had news of her mother being ill.

Miss Ione Plaxton left this week for Vermilion, where she has been engaged to teach Brockville school, which is about 17 miles south of Vermilion.

We understand that F. Grayson and N. Babb have purchased a truck.

L. Blason arrived home at the end of the month from A. Nichols, where he has been working for the past three months.

Mrs. A. Vegso had the misfortune to sprain her ankle last week. We hope she is around again by now.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Myers have returned to their home at Ponoka.

Miss Elsie Murray, who has been spending her vacation with her mother in this district, has now returned to Wainwright to resume her studies.

Floyd Meyer is now attending high school at Wainwright.

Miss Murray, of Three Hills, was suddenly called home from her duties as teacher of the Battle Creek school through illness in the family. Mrs. Louis Tondou is in charge of the school during her absence.

Mrs. Marvin Plaxton and baby daughter have returned home from the hospital.

Threshing operations have reluctantly been abandoned due to rainy weather. It is hoped they will not be suspended for too long a period.

of Jarow, where they will spend two days on the trail of the elusive duck.

Excavation started on the property formerly used for a tennis court, and construction will soon begin on the new modern residence for Mr. Brunker.

A linen shower was held at the home of Mr. T. Blason on Tuesday evening for Miss Yvonne Bourcier, a bride-to-be.

Mrs. H. W. McLeod entertained the members of her Sunday School class to a party at her home on Saturday afternoon.

Murray Pawling has been confined to his bed for the past week through illness.

North Edgerton

Rain last Thursday stopped the march of the many threshing machines but the high winds which followed in the last few days should soon dry things up once more.

Last spring Mr. James Cornfield received from Mr. S. Pawsey, of Edgerton, some 20 pheasants to raise on his farm but from the latest report these birds are all missing. We understand Mr. Pawsey has built a wonderful up-to-date bird house on his grounds in Edgerton. He has been raising the birds for quite some time now, and different farmers take a few each spring to look after.

The latest reports on wheat threshing is breaking 30 bushels per acre, while summerfalling is averaging 15 to 22 bushels per acre.

Quite a few appear to be suffering from the flu here, whilst others are having tonsillitis, etc., removed. They, too, seem to be having quite a time getting over a small operation.

Mr. Harold Moseng returned to Gordon Lake, N.W.T., last Thursday, after spending a few weeks' holiday here, being the guest of Mr. and Mrs. H. Reik.

Mr. H. Muddle, vice grain buyer for the elevator at Greenhills, has notice, is busy handling sheaves on a threshing outfit this fall. Quite a difference between weighing grain and threshing it, Henry!

Sheepskin Flats

Owing to unforeseen circumstances our teacher, Miss Murray, was called back to her home at Three Hills. Mrs. Louis Tondou will be the substitute teacher in Miss Murray's absence.

We are sorry to hear that Miss Fern Gardiner is on the sick list lately.

Miss Maggie Wilkinson is working at the home of Mrs. G. Tondou.

Owing to wet weather threshing will be held up for a few days and the boys have all returned home with a few blisters.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Myers left their son, Lloyd's, home on Thursday evening for their home in Ponoka.

Mr. D. Wallace, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Gardner and family, journeyed over to Ribstone Sunday last to visit Mrs. Gardner's mother, Mrs. Johnson.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Malcolm and son Jimmie, of Innisfail, spent a few days last week at the home of Mrs. Malcolm's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Wilkinson.

Congratulations are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Plaxton on the birth of their daughter.

Sonnie Little, of Heath, returned to his home, having spent a pleasant holiday on the farm of his uncle, Mr. J. Wilkinson.

A nice sized crowd attended the Lutheran church service held at the school here on Sunday last.

Mr. D. Gardner spent the past week harvesting his crop over in Hope Valley.

Mr. Julius Egrie purchased a Ford truck.

GREENSHIELDS

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Wolfe, of Wetaskiwin, were here last week renewing acquaintances and looking over their farm property. They were guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. Muncester.

Greenhills Service Station has another attendant these days in the person of Mr. E. C. Bond, of Edmonton, who is visiting his son and family.

Mr. W. A. White, of Vancouver, a property owner of this district, arrived Wednesday evening to visit his son, Bill, and family.

Mr. Ed Patterson was a tripper to the city Friday last.

Mrs. Murdoch, of Edmonton, is visiting her sisters for a few weeks.

SYDENHAM

Mrs. Hatlen, from Edmonton, spent a few days last week visiting Miss Ruth Rust.

A shower was held on Monday at the home of Mrs. C. M. Alexander in honor of Miss P. Rono, a recent bride. Tea was served during the afternoon and later she was presented with many lovely and useful gifts. To this young couple (Mr. and Mrs. Allen Glenn) we wish every success and happiness.

Donnie McKay spent the week end on the farm visiting with his relatives.

School re-opened on Tuesday, September 6th, with Mr. K. Hutchinson in charge.

Miss Jessie Jones and Claud McDonald passed successfully into Grade IX and will take up their studies in Wainwright.

Heavy rains fell on Thursday, putting an end to all threshing for the present.

Small Fire Outbreak Interrupts Thresh'g

While the Mayfield Syndicate machine was threshing at the Billy McKay, Jr., farm recently, the straw stack caught fire. Fortunately one of Bill Bibby's trucks was on hand and the hopper, into which the wheat was being threshed, was removed from the scene of the fire with this aid. Later the threshing outfit was also removed to a safer position, so that the damage was limited to the straw stack.

Rust Will Lower Some Crop Returns

The crop report by the Bank of Montreal says that in the prairie provinces, with favorable weather conditions prevailing, good progress has been made with the harvesting of the crops. Threshing is nearing completion in Manitoba and is general in Saskatchewan. In southern Alberta and the Peace River district threshing is well under way, but elsewhere in the province threshing operations have only commenced. When inspections to date show a large percentage of the grain grading No. 2 northern or better. In Manitoba good average yields have been obtained. Saskatchewan, where rust and grasshoppers caused serious damage, yields show a wide variation. Alberta has maintained the promise of a fairly good crop.

Speaking generally, harvesting operations are proceeding under ideal weather conditions in Alberta. Cutting of wheat is practically completed and coarse grains are well advanced. Threshing of a generally satisfactory wheat crop of good yield and grade is expected to be general this week. Some rust damage has occurred in the northeast and east-central districts. Outturns are light in the northwest and southeast. Pasture and feed are satisfactory.

Saskatchewan — Satisfactory progress has been made with harvesting under favorable weather conditions, and threshing operations are now general. Rust and grasshoppers have caused considerable damage and as a result wheat yields are very uneven, ranging from poor to good. Coarse grain crops are lighter than anticipated in parts of the province and at some points feed supplies are insufficient. Pastures are dry. Manitoba — Threshing is practically finished in southern Manitoba and operations are nearing completion elsewhere. While wheat returns are variable, yields and grades on the whole are fairly good. Coarse grains are satisfactory. Rain is now needed as little fall plowing has been done owing to the dry condition of the soil.

Preparing For New Varsity Term

With the opening of the fall and winter session of the University of Alberta only three weeks away, officials are preparing for the registration of over 1,700 students who will be studying for degrees in five faculties.

Registration for new students will commence Tuesday, September 27, with senior students checking in on Wednesday, September 28. The first lectures commencing on Friday, September 30. Registration this year is a few days later than last year.

Last year's attendance made a new record with over 1,770 students registered. Officials are unable to gauge whether this year's registration will be greater, but present indications point to a possible new high.

It is over a thousand miles in a straight line from the most easterly of the Company's elevators to the most westerly one. Its most southerly elevator is 500 miles further south than its most northerly elevator. It is a vast area which is served by this farmers' company. Because of the great area served, it has resources, equipment, organization and information enabling it to give every possible protection to the interests of its farmer customers. Organized by farmers, owned by farmers, controlled by farmers, this Company's essential purpose is now, as it has always been, to be of service to farmers. "The Kidnap Murder Case"

by S. S. Van Dine

"Before we go, sir," Vance said, "we wish to speak with you for a moment in the den. There are one or two points with which I feel you may be able to help us. . . . Do you mind?"

The lawyer rose with alacrity. "In the den I feel seated himself with an easy, confident air and waited for Vance or Markham to speak.

"Mr. Kenting tells us," Vance began, "that his brother demanded a large sum of money recently, to meet his debts and that, when the demand was refused, Kasper went to you as one of the executors of the estate."

"That is quite correct," Fleel responded. "I, too, refused the demand for, to begin with, I did not entirely believe the story Mr. Kasper Kenting told me. He has cried 'wolf' so often."

"Did Mr. Kasper see you personally?"

"No, he did not. He called me on the telephone," Fleel replied. "Frankly, I didn't ask him for any details and I was rather brusque with him. . . . I might say that Kasper has been trying problem to the executors of the estate."

"Despite which," continued Vance, "I imagine his brother, as well as you yourself, will do everything possible to get him back, even to meeting the terms of the ransom note. Am I right?"

"I see nothing else to be done," the lawyer said without enthusiasm.

"Mrs. Kenting has informed us that Kasper spoke to someone on the telephone when he came home in the early hours of this morning, and that he became angry. I wonder if it could have been you he called again?"

"Yes, damn it!" the lawyer returned with stern bitterness. "It was I. He woke me up some time after three and became very vituperative, and I refused to alter my previous decision."

"By the by, Mr. Fleel," Vance looked frankly at the man—"just how large a sum did Kasper Kenting ask Kasper?"

"Are you by any chance, one of them?"

"I'd just as soon never see him again."

"And who else do you think feels the same way about Mr. Kasper Kenting?"

"Mrs. Fallows and young Mr. Fallows have no love for him, sir, and even Mrs. Kenting herself has had more than enough of him, I think. She and Mr. Kenting are very good friends—and there never was any great love between the two brothers. . . . Mr. Kasper is a very difficult man to get along with—he is very unreasonable. He's the kind of man that strikes his wife when he has had too much to drink."

"I think that will be all," Vance broke in sharply. "You're an unspeakable gossip, Weem." He turned away with a look of keen defiance, and the butler shuffled from the room without any sign of displeasure or offense.

"Come, Markham," said Vance. "Let's get out into the air. I don't like to sit in this house—I don't at all like it."

Vance stopped at the drawing-room door, bade the occupants a brief farewell; and a minute later we were descending the outside steps of this house into the noonday sunshine of the street.

Outside stood Weems as if he had been eavesdropping.

We entered the District Attorney's car and drove toward Central Park. When we had almost reached the corner of Central Park West, Vance leaned forward suddenly and tapping the chauffeur on the shoulder, requested him to stop at the entrance to the Nottingham Hotel.

"Really, y' know, Markham," he said as he stepped out of the car, "I think it might be just as well if we paid a little visit to the as-yet-unknown Mr. Quaggy. He's a gentleman of means and a gentleman of leisure, as well as a gentleman of nocturnal habits. He may be at home, don't y' know. But I think we had better go directly to his apartment without appraising him of the visit y' being announced."

We had no difficulty in obtaining the number of Quaggy's apartment and being taken up in the elevator with out an announcement. In answer to our ringing the door was opened by a generously proportioned Negro woman.

"We want to see Mr. Quaggy," the Sergeant barked past her to the archway at the end of the foyer, toward which she waved her arm. Markham, Vance and I followed him.

As we entered, a haggard, dissipated-looking man of about forty rose from a low lounge chair in one corner of the room. He seemed both surprised and resentful at our intrusion. He was unmistakably the gambler type—that is, the type one sees habitually at gaming houses and the race-track.

"Forgive our unceremonious entry. You're Mr. Porter Quaggy, I believe?"

"What if I am? I don't understand why you—"

"You will in a moment, sir," Vance broke in ingratiatingly. "After he introduced himself, as well as Markham and me. 'We have just come from the Kentings' down the street," he went on. "A calamity took place there early this morning, and we understand from Mrs. Kasper Kenting that Mr. Kenting was with you last night."

Quaggy's eyes narrowed to mere slits.

"Has anything happened to Kasper?"

"We'll get to that later," Vance replied. "Tell me, what time did you see Mr. Kenting get home last night?"

"Who said I was with him when he came home?"

"Mrs. Kenting informed us that you and her husband went together to the opening of a casino in Jersey last night, and that Mr. Kenting returned somewhere around three o'clock in the morning."

"Even if it is true, what of it?"

"Nothing—really nothing of any importance," murmured Vance. "Just looking for information. I hope you are still bedecked in your evening toga. And your pumps are a bit muddy. It hasn't rained since yesterday, don't y' know. Offhand, I'd say you'd been sittin' up all night."

"Did you go to the Kenting house with Mr. Kenting?" asked Vance.

"No; our cab came down Central

4 or 6 slices onions

Self and pepper to taste.

Cook spaghetti in plenty of rapidly boiling water, well salted. Drain and butter. Fry pork chops until a delicate brown. Leaving skin on apples will add color to the dish. Combine spaghetti with apple slices and fried pork chops, alternating the chops with the sliced onions. Bake the combined ingredients one hour at 350 degrees. Serves four.

COTTAGE CHEESE SALAD DRESSING

2-3 cup sweetened condensed milk
1/2 cup vinegar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
1/2 teaspoon paprika
1/2 cup cottage cheese

Blend thoroughly sweetened condensed milk, vinegar, salt, mustard and paprika. Pour cottage cheese through sieve and add to mixture, beating until smooth. If desired, 1 package (3 ounces) cream cheese may be used in place of cottage cheese. Makes 12-3 cups.

COFFEE SPARKLE

Guests who like late hours and extra cups of coffee, and who still want a good night's sleep afterward, will find the hostess who serves decaffeinated coffee. Here's a novel variation of the popular beverage. Add a half pint of vanilla ice cream to a pint of cold, freshly-made decaffeinated coffee. Beat with an egg beater until creamy. Fill glasses three-fourths full of this coffee, then fill with ginger ale.

ORANGE CRUMB PIE

2 egg yolks, beaten
1/2 cup flour
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt

Mix well and add:
1 1/2 cups milk
1 cup orange juice
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
Cook in double boiler 15 minutes, or until thickened, stirring frequently. Cool. Pour into crumb crust pie shell. Cover with meringue. Bake 15 to 20 minutes in a slow oven to set meringue. When cold serve it dressed with whipped cream.

RIPE PLUM MARMALADE

3 cups (1 1/2 lbs.) prepared fruit
5 cups (2 1/2 lbs.) sugar
1/2 bottle fruit pectin

To prepare fruit, peel off yellow rind of 1 orange and 1 lemon with a sharp knife, leaving as much of the white part on fruit as possible. Put yellow rinds through food chopper; add 1/2 cup water and 1/2 teaspoon soda, bring to a boil. Cook 5 minutes. Cover with meringue. Bake 15 to 20 minutes in a slow oven to set meringue. When cold serve it dressed with whipped cream.

Measure sugar and prepared fruit into large kettle, filling up last cup with water if necessary. Mix well and bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil gently 5 minutes. Remove from fire and stir in bottled fruit pectin. Then stir and mix by turns for just 5 minutes to cool slightly, to prevent floating fruit. Pour quickly. Paraffin hot marmalade at once. Makes about 8 glasses (6 fluid ounces each).

Vance was at the archway now, and I was just behind him. Markham and Heath had already preceded us from the room. Vance paused for a moment and looked down at the small conventional desk which stood near the entrance. Quickly he adjusted his monocle and scrutinized the desk. On it lay a crumpled piece of tissue paper in the centre of which rested two perfectly matched dark stones, with a remarkable play of color in them—a pair of black opals!

"We're not sure yet. The fact is,

Mr. Quaggy, your companion of yesterday has disappeared—superficial indications pointin' to abduction."

"The hell you say!"

"Oh, yes—quite," Vance said.

"When did this happen?"

"Oh, early this morning some time," Vance informed him. "That's why we're here. Thought maybe you could give us an idea or two."

Quaggy finished the remainder of his glass of whiskey.

"Sorry, I can't help you," Quaggy said. "I've told you everything I

Then there is the parlor car, where one can stretch one's legs, lie on a comfortable easy chair, smoke, read the newspapers, look out on the landscape. I am never bored on these trains, even on the longest journey. Of the Canadian hotels, he states: "The New World has the Old Country beaten. I have just left the Canadian National Railway's hotel, The Fort Garry, Winnipeg. I have travelled much in my lifetime. I have had to find the kind of service, the kind of courtesy, the kind of helpfulness one gets there, and in many other places on the American continent." Sir Hugh tells a little story of the Winnipeg children; "Addressing them, I had occasion to use the word 'bawbee'. Did they know what a bawbee was? Up shot scores of little hands. Smart, I thought. Their answer was one of the highlights of the festival. With one accord they shouted: 'An English policeman!'"

BRUCE BARTON Says:

Change Scenes, Sucker-Sore

These few lines are written in the quiet of an office from which every one but the janitor has departed. Presently I shall take a train to a certain secret destination where I am to be joined by one of my partners. Our destination is Canada. We are going to eat and sleep and play golf for five days—nothing else.

Years ago a noted circus press agent introduced me to the crude phrase "sucker-sore." It means a highly nervous life. The fat woman, for instance, sits all day on her platform while the customers (suckers) parade by and emit comments like this: "Say, Joe, look at that doll baby. How do you like to have a stomach like that?" and "Jim, dear, just look at that fat woman. Isn't she terrible?"

The sword swallower, the midgits, the snake charmer, and the Siamese Twins all meet at silent under a barrage of similar jests. Theirs not to make reply, theirs not to reason why; they just have to sit and take it.

About once a month they explode. If something isn't done about it they jump off their stands and begin to bite the customers. Their nerves are shot; they are sucker-sore. The management sends them away for a few days rest, and they're ready then for another ordeal.

Every once in a while every man gets so tired that he begins to be a nuisance even to those he loves most. He annoys his wife and children; he is in danger of alienating the very people who have favored him with their business and are responsible for his living. He is sucker-sore. That is the time to pack the old bag and sneak off for a few days.

That 35th Mile-Stone

A gentleman with whom I had a luncheon engagement was a few minutes late. "You will have to excuse me," he said. "This is my thirty-fifth birthday. I have always said that when I was thirty-five I would have a complete physical examination. I have been at it more than two hours."

Thirty-five is one of the big mile-stones. I remember a series of articles our old friend John Silldall published years ago. He had Irvin Cobb write on Looking Back Ways at Forty. I wrote on How It Feels to be Thirty-five. Ring Lardner did the best piece in the series and called it General Symptom of Being Thirty-Five. Though I cannot quote them verbatim, some of Ring's sentences linger in my memory. For example:

"The subject is awakened in the middle of the night by the ringing of a fire bell. Sniffs but does not smell smoke. Figures it is not his house and rolls over and goes to sleep again."

Also, "Our patient buys a copy of a national magazine and reads the first installment of an exciting new serial story. At the end of the installment the villain holds the beautiful heroine in his horrid grasp. Patient forgets to buy the next month's issue."

Another big mile-stone comes at forty-five. No young person reads the obituary page of a newspaper. But along about forty-five a man suddenly discovers that page, and for the rest of his life is a regular consumer of it.

On my thirty-fifth birthday I took out some additional life insurance, and was pleased to have the doctor render such a good report. I cast up my accounts, and found a bit of a balance in the bank. I said to myself: "Now I am pretty well fixed. I propose never to be worried or hurried again." All of my really serious worries have happened since that date.

MAKING CANADA A Better Place in Which to Live

A Series of Letters from Distinguished Canadians on Vital Problems
Affecting the Future Welfare of Canada

Specially Written for Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association

LETTER No. 22

Dear Sir:

In asking me to offer any suggestion that would assist the rural weekly newspapers in making Canada a better place in which to live and work you are giving me a rather large order.

Localism is perhaps one of the besetting sins of the weekly newspaper, as of most of our local communities. It would seem to me that one of the greatest contributions that a weekly could make would be to give the people a better understanding of the world in which we all must live.

(a) A better understanding of people. We in this country are coming to be quite heterogeneous. It is very easy to play up the native-born and to play down foreign immigrants, very easy to set Orangemen against Catholics and vice versa; not so easy to get each group to understand the other. Further, the world today is shrieking. It took some of our ancestors nearly three months to cross the Atlantic, now it can be crossed in about a day. Our knowledge of the various nations has not kept pace with this growing proximity. It is still easy to stir up racial animosity that may lead to war.

(b) We need a better understanding of modern movements, political and otherwise. It is perhaps inevitable that in the heat of an election campaign the rival parties present their own points of view as strongly as possible. Surely between elections there ought to be some opportunity for an OPEN FORUM in which various groups will have the opportunity of presenting their distinctive policies and points of view. We cannot get rid of movements that we do not like simply by ignoring or denouncing them. We must understand them.

The DIAL REVIEW by Walter Davies

There's an old show business and radio superstition that the life of a quartet is two years. A few have held together for five years. Last summer Bob Burns told listeners of Kraft Music Hall that he would on Thursdays on an NBC-CBC-CJCA network at 7 p.m., about the tenth anniversary of the Foursome, a novel and harmony combination specializing in "sweet potato" music. The members of the Foursome, who will make 13 consecutive summer appearances in the Music Hall again this year while Bing Crosby vacations, were under the impression they had established a new record in quartet longevity. Burns' announcement last summer brought two letters from quartets which had been together equally as long as the Foursome, and surprisingly claimed to equal the Foursome. They investigated the history of various quartets and found that there were other quartets which had been together 10 years all right but not professionally. They were in small towns and made up of citizens who got together once in a while to enliven church socials and school gatherings.

Anne Seymour's interpretation of the role of Mary Martin on NBC-CBC-CJCA at 12 noon, has inspired pianist-composer Alan Grant to compose a song. It is called simply "Anne" and Grant says that it is sweet, unaffected, and full of joie de vivre, just like its inspiration.

After a year of bit part playing in numerous programs, 22-year-old Carolyn McKay has finally signed for her first permanent role. Carolyn has heard as Celeste Cunningham in the Guiding Light, broadcast Monday through Friday at 12:45 from CJCA. Behind the young actress' assignment to the program is the story of a small town girl whose ambition was to become a radio star. Through her boarding school days and her co-ed days she had only one goal—radio. As soon as she got her B.A. degree in speech and English she headed for Chicago. She soon won a job as commercial reader on local programs. Then came bit parts on network shows, and a permanent role in The Guiding Light.

Joe Summers, a CJCA technician, is doing a daily shift at studio operating these days, instead of his usual shift at the transmitter. On Joe's first day, announcers on duty during noon hour were surprised to hear a slinking rhythm roll suddenly through the loudspeakers, instead of the announced selection by Benny Goodman and his band. Joe scratched his head—wondered what in blazes was wrong. Imagine the color of his complexion when he discovered he was running 78 speed records on the slow-moving 33 1/3 turntables! "It didn't sound too bad at first," grins Joe. "Benny Goodman must be good!" Joe will continue this relief shift pending return of Merel Dahlgren from his Vancouver holiday.

CHANGE OF SPEED

(c) We should have a better understanding of modern economic developments. We Canadians are only one or two generations removed from early pioneer life. Our ideals are still largely close to the pioneers. Our policies tend to lag behind, yet in reality we must work out our destinies in a highly complex industrial society. Surely every citizen should have some little knowledge of the actual world in which he lives. I sometimes put it that there are two questions we could all learn to answer—"How did we get this way," and "Where do we go from here?"

I would suggest that without attempting anything sensational or spectacular you could carry out my suggestions, to use your own phrase, "in a quiet, effective and practical way."

Yours sincerely,

J. S. WOODSWORTH,
Leader, Canadian Commonwealth Federation, Ottawa.

The Ottawa Listening Post

(By the Reporter with a Notebook)

The minimum demand that common politeness imposes upon a stranger presumptuous enough to seek a place at the home fireside is that he shall introduce himself. Complying with this convention, accordingly, the Reporter with a Notebook—who with this issue becomes a humble suppliant in the highly illustrious family of Star readers—respectfully makes known the following details concerning himself and his mission:

In the first place, although he lives on Parliament Hill, breathes every day the stimulating controversy atmosphere of the National Capital, and rubs shoulders in working hours and at meal-times with leading figures in the old and the new parties, he is not himself a politician. He is just a journalist. But in his functioning as a journalist he becomes a clearing house for all the dependable information and all the worth-while gossip of the day. He hears it from all parties and from all persons. Grit and Tory, Social Credit and C.C.F., the lowly ward heeler and the highly placed Cabinet Minister all furnish grit to his mill. And he gathers his data from every part of the country. Parliament Hill is the Mecca for politicians from every part of the country, all seasons of the year, all bent upon some particular mission of their own. In the evenings in the lounges of Chateau Laurier their discussions come close to mirroring the state of the nation.

The mission of the Reporter with a Notebook is simply to bring you the information that he gets and the gossip that he hears as a background for your better understanding of the news of the day. He is ambitious to serve no party, neither is there any cause against which he wants to crusade. If from time-to-time you do not agree with what he writes, do not blame him. He is not giving his own views; he is just passing on impartially the situation as he understands it and the more significant reports that he hears. His object is to give the readers of The Star a privy glimpse into the corridors of Parliament or in the quarters of the Chateau Laurier where the statements of the nation and the politicians of the parties foregather.

Thus self-introduced, may the Reporter with a Notebook come in and find himself welcome?

He hopes so.

Some of the Parliament Hill Master Minds who have been proclaiming that Hon. Dr. E. J. Manion has everything to learn about leadership tactics and strategy are less emphatic on the point now than they were a few weeks ago. When the newly-elected Tory Chieftain set out for the Maritimes the other day to fire the real opening guns of his campaign there, they were prepared to concede that perhaps he knew something beyond the A.B.C.'s of leadership after all.

The reason is, of course, the Maritimes represent the section of the Dominion in which the tide of discontent is running its strongest. During the present season correspondents of such metropolitan journals as The Globe and Mail, Saturday Night and the Windsor Daily Star have been down there noting vivid word pictures of the grievances which exist. The field, consequently, has been ideally prepared for an Opposition Leader who comes with the promise of a New Deal to the discontented. Dr. Manion, in other words, should get a reception from the Maritimes such as he would be justified in expecting from no other section of the Dominion.

With him went T. A. Thompson, M.P. for North Lanark. There is an interesting significance to this choice by the new leader of one of the veteran rank-and-file Ontario members as his aide on his mission to the Mar-times. Dr. Manion is understood to intend a thorough democratization of the Conservative leadership. There is to be no "inner council" controlling things during his regime. Consequently, as he travels about the Dominion carrying the torch of the Tory crusade, he proposes to take the Federal M.P.'s in rotation as his lieutenants. Each will do his turn of service. The idea is a popular one among the Tory M.P.'s and already the new Chieftain is assured a co-operation from his parliamentary followers that will be enthusiastic.

Dr. Manion proposes to seek election in the pending London by-election. Prime Minister King, with his invariable courtesy towards his opponents and his high sense of the amenities of public life, would like to see him given an acclamation. A possible stumbling block to such a plan is furnished in the person of Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn. It would not be inconsistent with the Ontario Premier's recent conduct for him to see that Dr. Manion is opposed, if he knows that Mr. King wants him elected by acclamation.

Parliament Hill does not believe, however, that Mr. Hepburn will intervene. The general belief is that he would not want to suffer the loss of prestige that the defeat of his candidate would involve. And a Liberal running in London in opposition to what were known to be Prime Minister King's wishes would stand a very remote chance of success.

While on the subject of Mr. Hepburn:

The authentic rumor travelling Federal circles is that Ontario's Number One politician may soon have his own hands so full that he will have no time left for prosecuting his own private quarrel with Mr. King. The provincial Tories are said to be preparing to buckle the harness on once more to that formidable old war-horse of a few years ago, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson. The slogan in the inner Conservative circles is reported to be that the inimical "Fergy" alone can redeem the Ontario Tory cause.

The reports that strong pressure is being brought to draft Hon. Mr. Ferguson into the provincial leadership again unquestionably are well founded. The motive, however, is probably less to defeat Mr. Hepburn than to head off the prospect of a Colonel George A. Drew leadership. The former Conservative organizer is not yet back in good standing with the party machine since his celebrated break with Hon. Earl Rowe, and the party moguls are determined that he will not wear the mantle of leadership if they can prevent it. The latest word, furthermore, is that Hon. Mr. Ferguson is sympathetic to their point of view. If he throws his hat in the ring he will certainly be chosen. And his speech at the recent Manion banquet in Toronto was a sufficient guarantee that he retains enough of his old fire to make the recently-draft battle of politics in Ontario interesting once more.

The LegionNotice Board

We are in receipt of a letter from Major Bowler, General Secretary of the Dominion Command, which is nothing less than an eye-opener in regard to the far-reaching effect of our modest column. This letter reads:

"In the Legion column of the 'Wainwright Star' of August 24th, there was an item concerning the automatic increase at 55 years of age to pensioners with gunshot wounds. The question is raised as to why the increase does not apply to disease cases.

The situation generally is this: Pensioners with gunshot wounds in the majority of cases have been marked 'permanent'. While the disabilities themselves are fixed disabilities, with advancing years they become a greater burden to the individual pensioner, and the automatic increase is to compensate that pensioner to some extent for this handicap. On the other hand, there is provision under the regulations for a disease case to be examined at any time the pensioner feels his condition has become worse, and if this is substantiated by the Medical Board, then his pension rate is increased accordingly.

At the same time, may I say that the automatic increase to pensioners in the classes named is not the final word that will be said on this subject. The question is being given careful study, and it is not unlikely that at some future date further representations will be made with respect to pensioners generally."

Mrs. J. Dawson, of Edmonton, Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Mistress of the L.O.E.A., while paying her visit to the local lodge, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. F. Hart.

SMILE

Never cherish the worries that meet you each day.
For the better you treat them, the longer they'll stay;
Just cast them aside with a smile or a song,
And something much better will hurry along.
